I fished it once in May, when it should have been prime time. We were in the National Forest in the upper reaches, I caught one brown that was fairly small. I didn't think much of the experience. The other thing is, I go to NC PA every year for opening day, and for the last several years have not done well at all. It's a bit early for flies that time of the year, but it depends on the stream. Some streams do get going fairly early as long as hatches have started.
