Just remember you picked a tough time to start. I remember when I started fishing I came close to saying enough I'm done, my tenth time out still no fish! Was at my truck taking off my neoprene chest waders (ouch) The look on my face must have said I'm done cause an older gentleman stopped and asked how I did. Told him doesn't matter cause I'm done, he asked me what's going on. So I told him everything including the fact that I was done with it. He asked me if I had another hour or so and to put the waders back on. Three fish in 45 minutes with him showing me what to do I couldn't believe it! On the way back to the truck he asked what I thought of fly fishing now, it's almost 25 years later... Oh one more thing he also told me if you're going to fly fish you must start to tie. Really glad he was there that day, probably would have kept going with it but you never know. I think of him almost every time I step in a stream.
