If you ever stop learning in this sport, then you are doing something wrong. Someone said something in another thread today which is equally relevant here, as well. Going fishing has to be as much about the experience of being fishing as it is about the catching. I remember many years ago when my wife got me a 1st generation Nintendo and I was obsessed about saving the princess in Super Mario Brothers. It took me months to master the game until I got so good at it that I could save the princess every time. I finally got so bored with the game that I simply stopped playing. You don't ever want our passion to become boring, so never mastering it is a positive!!!!!!!!!!

Tru dat - if I can generalize it even more, if you ever stop learning in life, then you might as well be dead..

Fish are bonus in winter. Enjoy the time on the water; if it is cold enough for snow and ice, enjoy that fact and the various forms water comes in, and if you can entice a fish from some liquid H₂O, its a plus.
