

---

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Panfish in lancaster city

Re: Panfish in lancaster city

Author: : jeremymcon

Date: : 2013/2/14 21:35:17

URL:

Quote:

fishingnoob wrote:

if you get the chance jeremy make the drive up to berks county and fish the tully outside of reading...its an easy drive up 222...probably 30 mins from east pete...my family is from lancaster and every time im home a buddy of mine and myself always try to find time to head up there...great fishing...plenty of species (including panfish)...and right now great for trout

I might have to do that. When I was living at home in Lebanon county the tail end of the Tulpehocken ran through my town. Learned to use dry flies on that part of the stream. Never did see any warm water species on the stretch that I fished - just trout, creek chubs, and plenty of carp. I've been meaning to fish it upstream a little further. Is there an access point off of 222 someplace?