I think I would of been better off not watching this. Trout with holes in their mouth, some with trebles around their gills. that guys should stick to bass. why cant he replace them with single hooks. at least the trailer. its almost a sin to do something like that. mean while he talks about how delicate the fish are. Trebles are fine for some species of fish but not trout.

I agree chaz what are you thinking. their is no way that trebles are ok to be use on trout and he is using a rapala that is more for bass and saltwater application which means bigger hooks and that means a bigger hole in the fish. the trebles use on rooster tails are a little safer but that because their is one and they are smaller.
