I seem to recall a couple hundred thousand rainbow fingerlings being dumped into Marburg in the summer about ten years ago. I recall it to be a WTF moment when we heard. But apparently it was the "Coldwater fishery" of choice to dump them. I forget the reason why the dump occurred. We joked at TU about buying up all the rainbow trout rapalas and going after the musky and stripers and walleyes. But alas, we never acted on it.

Perhaps this buffet for the predator fish determined by the AFM took pressure off the white perch and caused the explosion. Perhaps Mike can give us his assessment on this possibility.
