I seriously doubt if any trout that ever lived ever saw an insect that looked like a traditional down winged wetfly. The consensus use to be they were taken for small fish.

So fish them like small streamers and use the soft hackles to give the trout the impression something alive and good to eat is in his feeding zone.

Paint a picture for them. Pulsating, breathing and eminently eatable.

Let those who fish with plastic flies on the surface catch their plastic little stockers. TETO
