
Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : I <3 Frenchies

I <3 Frenchies

Author: : InTheMend

Date: : 2013/2/17 19:40:01

URL:

So I fished the LL the other day and did quite well. It was a friday and the weather ended up getting into the fifties. So, I decided to get on the stream before anyone else. Two hours before anyone. I ended up with six fish in 2 1/2 hours which I was happy with. Three on frenchies, two on soft hackle jigs, and one on my lead fly(caddis pupa). I even had a 19" brown break off at my feet.(7x) The goal for fishing on friday was not to catch a lot of fish, it was to get better at euro nymphing. I am currently training for the U.S. Youth Fly Fishing Nationals. So I need to get better at euro/straight lining. The famed Frenchie has allot going for it in the popularity category. So I decided to fish them. Orange was the color friday, but I assume that the other colors in the photo will work great too. I tied these up after my initial success. Just wondering if anyone else has had good success with the fly? I can see why it's many top tier competitive fly fishers favorite fly. Also, how do they look? Thanks!

P.S. - I am aware the photo sucks, badly. I am currently in the process of getting a much better camera. This was taken with my phone. 🙄

Attach file:

 frenchies_2013_02_18_01_40_51_257.jpg (99.44 KB)

