NickR, I don't know if that's a compliment or not. As for the 7x tippet, I usually use 5 or 6, but on friday, the fish for some reason were really sensitive so I decided to go on the safe side. I also think it's more fun to fight fish on light tippet even if you loose some. And if I feel that the fight is getting to long and the fish could be getting tired I try to horse it in so I can release it, or the line breaks. I am very aware and keen on proper catch and release. With that being said, your probably right about the tippet size in general.
