The rainbow I caught was over 20" for sure and fat. I heard reports of locations and methods on the lake that catch rainbows in numbers. People are fishing using nearly the same methods as were used with the cohos.

I know from accounts that there are still big bows in there. Its just that Marburg is such a deep decent sized lake and finding each species gets very technical / stroke of luck. I have found, the large rainbows seem to be adjacent to the same areas I have found the largest bass. And mostly its deep.
