Three problems here. Large bass sized trebles and the fact he obviously left the barbs on like you would bass fishing. If he used barbless hooks all you would need is a rubber net to help control the fish in the water and a hemostat to carefully back out the hooks. The other problem is fishing a jerk bait with the snap pause retrieve. You are going to get a lot more foul hooked fish whether you are trout or bass fishing with that type of erratic lure action. Just the nature of the lure and it's action. I also did not like seeing him rip the hooks out like so many bass fisherman do. Just way to rough on the fish no matter what species it is.
