

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Tying Thread

Re: Tying Thread

Author: : Tiogadog

Date: : 2013/2/20 8:17:57

URL:

I have not had any issues with Veevus. I have tied several dozen flies with it and it has been a solid thread. Is it the holy grail of tying thread? No, but it does have a thin diameter and is strong enough. I have only used the 14/0 though.

I try to use UTC 70 for most of my trout flies. I like their colors and the feel of the thread when tying.

My only issue with UTC is sometimes you get a spool that knots up or tangles.

Danville 6/0 is also good stuff...actually good enough to use exclusively...but I don't

I have used Uni 8/0 and still do for some patterns. I feel it is too corded.

Basically as has been said, thread is cheap. Find the one or ones you like and get busy.