I have owned the cross water in 9' 5 wt. My favorite rod i have ever put my hands on. I would say it is more medium/fast. I own the pursuite now. It is a great rod but a little more fast then the cross water. If you choose redington on your 4 weight rod i would go with a cross water. The thing is comparaple to many sages IMO.

I will not say anything bad about ALLEN. As the others have stated, they go way beyond normal means for customer service, they have donated many things to members of this site who have started youth programs and such.

I have never talked with Justin, but Ethan has been very good to me with their hooks and using them for my fly tying business.

My next rod will be an Allen for sure.
