

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : The Elitist Fly Fisherman....Reality or Myth?

Re: The Elitist Fly Fisherman....Reality or Myth?

Author: : Breeze717

Date: : 2013/2/21 9:48:53

URL:

This is a great thread. I have to say both sides of the argument have some stereotypes that can be true. I've been a spin/bait fisherman my whole life up until a few years ago when I moved to Lycoming county. I picked up fly fishing there. Now I fish both ways, and get enjoyment out of both. I also bartended in the Pine Creek area and have served douchey fly fisherman and redneck bait guys. The thing is, to me at least, is there are two types of trout people. The guy who goes out first week and fills his cooler full of stockies, and the guy who loves everything about trout fishing. I consider myself the latter, and most in this forum can identify with that. At the end of the day we are all chasing the same fish. Powerbait, minnow, or Wolly Bugger, it's all the same.