The East Branch Spring Creek, the largest headwater trib, holds wild brown trout.

I checked 12 other direct tribs to Spring Creek, and 8 out of 12 are on the reproduction list.

And the upper part of Spring Creek itself is on the reproduction list. The lower part of Spring Creek is not.

But the reason the lower part of Spring Creek does not support wild trout is clearly not because it's too infertile because of the geology.

The real reason must be some other factor(s).
