The frenchie is one of my top producers, I however just use floro red or orange thread. I have went with jig hooks also.

I do some comp fishing also and I agree if you on the right water type tight light nymphing will out fish indi style. Indi style or dry dropper will out fish tight line nymphing on the long deep pools particularly in fresh stocked fish and the winter.

both styles shine in certain times. One difference between the two is with tight line nyming you are in contact with the flies all the time as long as you are doing it correctly. You dont have that with indi style and you will miss strikes.
