

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Little Lehigh and other SEPA Fly Spots

Re: Little Lehigh and other SEPA Fly Spots

Author: : Mike

Date: : 2013/2/23 19:14:05

URL:

I understand what you are trying to accomplish. As mentioned, the Tulpehocken is a great place to fish under varying conditions. You can maximize your exposure to different situations by fishing both the DH Area and the non-special reg area below it. You'll note that the area below the DH Area is listed in the reg book as being open to year around fishing. Additionally, the Tully offers varying flow conditions that may be quite different from the natural flows in SE Pa on any given day. You can monitor Tully flows from home simply by going to the USGS web site and looking at the river stages and flows. The Tully below Blue Marsh Lake is included.