I have a patch of foam on my vest that I use to hold flies that I've used for the day. If it's a tandem that I know produces, I'll wrap it around the foam after I've used it for a bit so that I can quickly rig it up later.

If I don't put the flies away at the end of the day (which is often), it'll stay rigged until the foam gets full of too many flies. I'll usually have 2 or 3 rigs on there, as well as any odd number of flies
