

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Buyers remorse

Re: Buyers remorse

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2013/2/25 7:17:47

URL:

Quote:

robkonowitch wrote:

So... after I purchased my TFO Pro 2 6wt, I have been rethinking the purchase. I have a 5wt White River Classic that I like (2 piece) and a 3 piece 8Wt.

Here is the question... Based on fishing for trout and bass (and looking at saltwater as well), Should I get an 8 or 9 Wt instead of the 6? Just fish the 5 for trout and bass?

Or a 3 or 4 wt?

When I started out, I owned two rods. I fished a 5wt for trout and an 8wt for bass. The 5 wt should be a great trout rod (and you mentioned you really liked it), and you can also fish it for bass in small streams. For bigger river smallmouths and/or largemouths in lakes, the 8wt should do a good job.

Saltwater is another deal all together. If you are really into SW fishing, consider a sturdy 9 or 10wt rod with a decent reel.