

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Nymphing

Re: Nymphing

Author: : GenCon

Date: : 2013/2/25 13:39:12

URL:

IMO, there is no set way. Using 1 split shot in one run may work but not in another. I vary the amount of weight used depending on the water depth and speed. When you are using an indicator watch it intently. Watch the bubbles on the water. If your indicator is moving faster than the bubbles you have drag on your line. Keep mending to avoid this also you should be bumping the bottom with your rig. If not you probably need to add more weight.

I do believe, if you are not losing the occasional fly you are not deep enough. One other thing a strike can be obvious or very subtle. Sometimes just a small tick means a fish.

gencon