I didn't say or imply that my advice wasn't made in good faith but I do think it's a troll and I stand by that.

I wasn't really sure what the poster was asking, as it appears he's considering anything from a 3-9wt, but by already owning a 5wt and 8wt logic would say don't buy a new 9wt or another 8wt and a 3 or 4wt really is close to the 5wt in my opinion so maybe I should have suggested a 12wt as another option to the 1wt suggestion.

Right now the 8wt that he owns could double as a heavy fresh/light salt rod and the 5wt is a great all purpose trout rod so then the decision is salt or lighter trout and if you really want something best suited to saltwater go 12wt and if better suited to light trout a 1wt would make a really neat addition.

So it's really not bad advice at all.
