

---

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Buyers remorse

Re: Buyers remorse

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2013/2/25 14:00:49

URL:

Ok, look at it this way. Of the below, pick what you want to do, make sure you got the rods to cover it. You can get one of each, or pick tweeners to do dual duty (jack of several trades, master of none).

0-2 wt - no logical use, but some people enjoy light tackle for small-medium stream trout, and that's ok.

3 wt-6 wt - Perfect trout sizes. Smaller weights (and lengths) for smaller streams, the bigger weights for bigger waters and fish. A 6 wt is on the high side for a trout rod, and on the small side for bass and steelhead, but it'll do both just fine.

7 wt-8 wt - Perfect for big river bass and steelhead. A little big, but acceptable for big water trout. A stiffer 8 wt is getting into the respectable range for salmon.

9+ wt - salmon and saltwater.