

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Nymphing

Re: Nymphing

Author: : marcq

Date: : 2013/2/25 14:16:59

URL:

like gencon said you want to be on the bottom. another thing to add is I only fish nymphs in fast moving water with a lot of weight. generally areas with a lot of white water is where I nymph. I find a deeper hole and work a bubble line with the nymphs. don't get to specific on what nymphs the ones you nee are PT, Hears ear, scuds, and caddis larva and midges. this also depends on the stream. but in most stocked streams that's all you need. don't use the cheap sticker foam indicators they suck if your are trying to learn how to nymph. I used little bubble that are like a bobber.

I don't know much about Euro/Czech style I just high stick. try to keep as little fly line in the water.

one last thing is the water is still cold and the fish act differently this time of year so don't get to mad. slow deep pools is where you will find fish. the best fly in winter is a zebra midge.