

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Nymphing

Re: Nymphing

Author: : mike_richardson

Date: : 2013/2/25 14:20:23

URL:

A wise old bait fisherman to think of the water as a buffet line. The fish will want to be at the head of the line to get the food they need before the other fish can. Also key in on structure and rocks to determine where the fish will hide for cover.

Combine the two and you will have figured out the most productive feeding lies. Also pay attention to how the fish will see you. In faster/white water the fish will not be able to see you as well and you can afford to get closer to the stream. Match your weight to how fast you want the flies to get down to the feeding zone. Faster areas will give the fish less time to reject your fly and less time to make the decision to eat it.