

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Nymphing

Re: Nymphing

Author: : StarvinMarvin

Date: : 2013/2/25 15:04:14

URL:

Ok, so today I was fishing Neshanock, and tons of little brown stonefly nymphs were swimming along the surface you could scoop them out I grabbed one, open up the box and decided to throw on a beadhead PT and a size 16 black prince nymph. I put two micro split shots between them and threw on a micro indi. No fish for the first half hour I then realized that they were eating them higher in the surface film, so i lowered my indicator to about 7" about my PT, then bam fish after fish after fish. It really all depend on the scenario, I guess like above just learn to read fish and the water and you'll become more keen.