I think you'll be pleased with the update! There's a waypoint function that allows you to do what you are talking about. You can set points on specific holes and record notes or fishing logs for each spot. You can even share those waypoints and notes with friends.

The new version in the works is designed as a graphical map interface rather than a just a menu but retains the menu interface as an additional way to target or search specific criteria.

The good news is that the testers are impressed so far and haven't found much in the way of issues so I'm hoping to be able to release it sooner than planned if everything keeps going well.

PS Thanks for buying it!
