I agree with the fact you don't have to tie exact imitations to catch fish, and that a general size and shape will work. This style nymph is not the only one I tie and fish, I find myself wanting to tie this style from time to time and I do enjoy the time spent making them. Whether the fact you like the way it looks or not it's produced fish for me when other nymphs have not. The fact is this particular pattern does indeed catch trout alot of trout actually, I'm not trying to change anyones mind about this, tying is a very personal thing, we all like what we like.
