Millstone Creek, just west of Spring Creek, is another mystery.

I checked the reproduction list and could not find anything in that whole watershed that is on the list. This includes Millstone Cr itself, and its East and West Branches, and 15 named tributaries.

The majority of this watershed is in the Allegheny National Forest. Are there really NO wild trout in that entire forested watershed?

Or have they never assessed the small tribs in this watershed?

If there are really no wild trout in that whole watershed, that's truly bizarre, and begs for an explanation. There are wild trout in the small streams in other streams in the region.
