Good answers!

But I suspect bikerfish is closest. Doesn't the one who possesses power over a thing own it?

If God owns them, didn't he instruct us to take dominion over them? Or was He addressing the PFBC?

If the state is obligated to protect them, are there any limits to this protection? Do they have the right to outlaw fishing altogether? Wouldn't this be the best protection?

Something tells me there were trout long before the invention of the state...

Remarkable! There is no hesitation to endorse the power to regulate human behavior yet none of us seem to agree on where that right comes from. Am I the only one who finds this alarming?
