I use trout beads both in NY and here for local trout. I use them pegged just above a fly. Especially when fishing over recently stocked fish. The bead represents an egg therefore giving the fish two choices to take. Only if the fly hook is on the outside of the fish's mouth can you tell whether it took the bead or the fly. Sometimes in NY I will use a bead and bare hook, but most of the time I use a stonefly or bugger too. One thing I do know, trout beads work and they are very inexpensive.
