I think Mo is right. "Owns" is not the right word to use. Our government, for example, does not OWN the individual citizen (despite how perverted things may have become in this country, we still are not owned by our government), and yet the government has a RESPONSIBILITY to protect and guard the general welfare of its citizens. Thinking about this in the same light, I believe the state has a responsibility to protect and guard the general welfare of its resources, including its wildlife.

I'm sure this can be picked apart and torn to shreds somehow, but I think this is the general idea anyway.
