This is actually a great discussion. I feel it's socratic. It seems to have become a progression of logic and precepts. The answers you have to the questions here determine how you think and interpret things.

I agree. My joke about crossing the Canadian border is partly serious. Fish and game are free to cross borders and for me that complicates the issue or concept of ownership or who owns them. I say God owns them and if you don't agree with that, how about mother nature.
