Dont get me wrong, put me on a stream and I focus on catching fish (particularly if I have never been there before). But I have had a few great trips lately, catching just a few fish in really cold water in streams not even on the nat repro list.

Fish counting can be fine, but letting it become the point has issues. Good to admire the fine scenery and streams we have, do well given the conditions, learn something. Sometimes these things happen even without catching too many...
