

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Northern Ireland trout

Re: Northern Ireland trout

Author: : eunanhendron

Date: : 2013/3/1 21:02:33

URL:

I'm sure there is, but most of those waters are privately owned, so permission is required. I've not done anything like that over there for about 20 years, so i've little information on that.

What you could do is join the fly fishing forum uk site and post some questions. I know there are a ton of guys from NI who will be able to help you out. May even take you fishing when you're there....

here the site.

<http://www.flyforums.co.uk/index.php>

The other drawback to that is you will need to buy a permit to fish the water, and license from the government agency to have a rod.

Its a complete shambles in UK with fishing and hunting.

If you go to a stillwater fishery the requirements are more lax. They wont likely ask for a license and since they are privately owned for the most part (Dungannon Park Lake excepted) you'll only have to pay the daily fee.

Fishing for the stocked bows is good sport. Many of them are over wintered so they get pretty big. Biggest i caught at Straid was a 6lb 12oz rainbow. He was a resident for a few years judging by the tail on him when i got to the net.

Sorry i cant be of more help than that.