about 10 years ago i started using a sage 6wt fishing from ohio to the salmon river and caught a lot of big fish on it...never broke.

if you are looking for a challenging fight go lighter and make it exciting...otherwise get the 8wt and you will be able to put the horse power down on em.

i am not normal though, always using light tackle for everything i fish for...i guess i enjoy the challenge and am not as concerned with big landed numbers.

other note...if you use this technique, please respect the fish, meaning if the time of year requires you to catch and release the fish quickly then use heavier equipment. this will not apply to steelhead though.
