There was a time not too long ago when I accepted some grief about supporting competitive fly fishing. They had rules so I'm wondering in comparing what are yours?

There is a difference to put your rod in a puddle full of fish than to catch fish in the worst conditions and places you never thought fish would be.

One fantastic fish ....where you would never expect it.... is worth 100 of nothing you never really earned. Stockies, catch them eat them, but half starved native brookies. Geez you can catch them on a pin. Not much to brag about.

Guess I should have read the whole post. I must be missing something,so no worries not into crashing on a good day of fishing.
