

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Flotilla

Re: Flotilla

Author: : blueheron

Date: : 2013/3/2 10:49:10

URL:

Yeah, the sulphur still survives up in your neck of the woods, I recall one particular spot I was watching them pop-up like clockwork in a feeding lane at the head of a pool, every fifteen seconds or so, sadly the trout were not as clued in. Now I just took them as sulphurs and fished them as sulphurs but being an imperfect entymologist they very well could have been some other bug, I'm hesitant to post any info here without empirical proof.