Freestylefisher your post makes no sense. If the water is high and moving you will not be able to see the fish and you need to use the appropriate weight to get down and slow your fly enough so it dosen't blow by the fish. If the fish is hooked in the mouth how is that snagging and if the water is high how can you see to line them? I believe this thread was about what weight fly rod to use in NY not what your talking about.
