Dear Maurice,

To your last question, I reckon it's going to be people like you and me?

I only met Lefty one time and it was at Clouser's shop about 10 years ago. I knew who he was from pictures I'd seen in the Baltimore Sun a long time ago.

He walked in with his hands hanging down at his side with his fists balled up asking Bob Clouser if Bob could hear him? Bob said, "No!" I looked down and Lefty was carrying his hands with his middle fingers extending to floor.

He flipped his arms upright and yelled at Clouser, "Can you Effin' hear me now?"

That's the Lefty that I got to meet and spend two hours with at Clouser's. He wouldn't know me for schitt, but I had a blast BS'ing with him and Bob.

I saw Lefty signing books yesterday at the show.

I'm not worried about who will the ambassadors of fly fishing going forward, I'm more worried about whether anyone will be as entertaining and engaging?

In today's world you are instantly famous and infamous, back then everyone earned their consideration and recognition.

Regards,

Tim Murphy 😊
