I had always recognized Lefty as a legend, but never knew much about him. I'd seen him once or twice on fishing shows. But I'd never read much from him or otherwise knew anything about how and why he achieved fame. One of those celebrities that you never really paid attention to.

At Somerset, though, I attended his talk on photography tips, and gained some respect for him. Very entertaining personality. Downright funny, really. While still coming across as sharp and managing to be informative.
