Didymo is not slimy but rather rather has a course, wool-like feel.

Nevertheless, I'm not sure about the pic. Didymo is yellow and tends to bloom out this time of year on rocks....but this is also true for a variety of algaeas. If it was local around Philly, I'd contact the PFBC and forward these pics via PM to Mike just to be safe. Didymo does exist in some eastern PA waters and may be spreading.

EDIT: I sent the link to Mike to check out. He may want to know the water involved. Jbomb, you might want to follow up by PMing Mike the name of the stream and area you fished.
