I have an original copy of that issue and have studied the article carefully. It's a good article but definitely describes the size of the fish and the hatches glowingly and I think unrealistically (at least by today's standards). Sparse asked George Harvey to help him prepare the article and Harvey declined.

The same issue also has articles on Armstrong Creek and the Quinault River. I sometimes wonder if fans of those streams have the same disdain for those articles as many PA anglers today have for the article on Penns.
