No matter what anyone thinks, we are living in a golden age for wild trout in Pa. Yes the streams and trout are under pressure but less so than when this article was written. My guess is that most streams in central PA including Penns are far better than they were in the 60's. Old timers have selective memory (no insult intended). It's just the truth of the matter. We all seem to only remember our best days! Most if not all of the streams we consider great wild trout fisheries now were nothing but put and take hatchery runs back then. I know there are definitely exceptions but we have it good and I think better than 1958.
