He described the guys from the Cumberland Valley driving up for the famous Green Drake hatch and generally finding it disappointing.

Heck, thats how I feel today. I can go to streams with a much less prolific drake hatch and catch far more trout. But the bugs themselves on that stream are the true draw for me during that hatch. Its really something and an event we should all witness once. Havent gone up for it in maybe 6 years, but I should probably show it to Atlantisboy this year.
Its time. 😊
