

Subject: : Print, Video, Audio Discussions

Topic: : 1958 Sports Illustrated Story On Penns Creek

Re: 1958 Sports Illustrated Story On Penns Creek

Author: : lv2nymph

Date: : 2013/3/6 21:16:35

URL:

I had never heard of "spotburning" until I found this forum. Been on here for about a year and honestly I'm still a little confused about what is and what is not spot burning. Really to me it seems like a matter of personal opinion, some think just talking about a stream is doing it, posting about it in a forum, writing an article, pfb stream listing, and any other way of communicating about a place to fish is spot burning. So what about all the books of streams? Maps that show you exactly how to get there, hatch charts, listing of flies to use and when. Just seems like anything but absolute silence is spot burning. 🙄 I personally like the map books, articles, and someone telling me about a good place to fish, cause alot of those places that's the only way I'll find them. Sure you find some on your own but it's nice to get some inside info. before you go. Ya know?