I wasn't picking on you Attackone, I was just curious about the gills freezing. During the ice season many an angler lays trout or other fish on the ice while still fishing. They will just lay there, if you put them back into the water they come back to life, for how long it's anyones guess. Not that I'd do that, if it's out of the water it's going to be cooked. But I usually buy my fish.
