
Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Wet flies...???

Re: Wet flies...???

Author: : redietz

Date: : 2013/3/8 23:59:11

URL:

Quote:

geebee wrote:

I read that mike heck sometimes fishes a wet 4"-6" behind a dry in the film.

The idea is the dry acts as an attractor n the cripple seals the deal....

Anyone done that ? - I'm interested to try it. Landing will be a bitch.

I do it regularly. Why do you think landing will be difficult?

Something else you might want to try with a dry/wet combo, although you need to put a couple of feet of leader between the two: use the wet as anchor, and you can lift the dry off the water a inch or so. (Obviously, the flies will be downstream of you.) Raising and lowering the rod tip will bounce the fly up and down, like an ovipositing natural. I find in especially useful during the sulfur hatch on heavily fished waters.