Well - if you fish dries only, you don't have that problem!

Seriously though - I store my leaders the same way. And there is no real trick to unwinding them - other than just being very slow, and careful with it. And even at that, I still get a tangle occasionally.

You might want to try a different storing method that one of my buddies use. He wraps his leaders on old tippet spools. No tangle problems with that I'm sure
