

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Mill Creek, Lancaster Co., 3/9/13

Re: Mill Creek, Lancaster Co., 3/9/13

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2013/3/9 22:30:03

URL:

Pre-spawn smallies should be getting in gear now. Watch those water temps - you want about 42 degrees to get 'em up off the bottom and on to current breaks. They usually start to feed heavily as temps rise toward 50, which is usually mid March around here. Although the weather is really warm, we just had a shot of snow melt and sometimes that will actually drop water temps and put the fish off the bite.