Seems the 2 hours I spent cleaning out stream side vines must have gotten overlooked. I appreciate all acts of volunteering. Only the IRS knows what I do with TU and other charities. Maurice I have met 100s of anglers. This guy was different. Telling us to fish stone flies on Valley was downright wrong. PS That was no joke he made about the pricker bushes...he was dead serious. He specifically stated he did not want anglers in the subject matter stream.

Sometimes "volunteers" can grow a little power happy. Let me give you an example I have come across in my career. Have you ever had to deal with a Zoning Board/Condo Association? They are volunteers. And they pass Commy like laws/regulations like what color trash can you have to use...not allowing rabbits as pets not allowing perimeter fences....I could go on and on. Are zoning boards important? Sure they are...take a ride through the Poconos to see that...but the point I am trying to make is that no matter how altruistic the motive of volunteering is...some "volunteers" see it as entitlement and self aggrandizement . Nobody is going to tell me I can't fish a public stream that is not posted by the landowner.
